

MEMBERSHIP IN THE AMERICAN NUCLEAR SOCIETY

The American nuclear Society is an international, not-for-profit scientific and educational organization consisting of approximately 11,000 engineers, scientists, educators, students, and others with nuclear-related interests. These individuals represent more than 1,600 corporations, educational institutions, and government agencies - approximately 900 members live overseas in 40 countries.

The Society's main objective is to promote the advancement of engineering and science relating to the atomic nucleus. Other purposes are to integrate the many nuclear science and technology disciplines, encourage research, establish scholarships, disseminate information through publications and journals, inform the public about nuclear-related activities, hold meetings devoted to scientific and technical papers, and cooperate with government agencies, educational institutions, and other organizations having similar purposes.

The entire nuclear science and technology field benefits from ANS' activities and programs. Individual ANS Members can take advantage of numerous opportunities to achieve personal career objectives and professional growth; they can also influence the Society's activities and attitudes, and ultimately, public opinion.

You can directly influence the future of nuclear through ANS standards development, public information efforts, paper presentations, meeting attendance, and committee and steering group participation. ANS membership provides opportunities for professional expression and recognition and gives you the chance to mix with all levels of the nuclear community through the ANS national organization, its 19 divisions, 52 U.S. and nine overseas local sections, and 23 plant branches.

Membership benefits include:

- ! a yearly subscription to Nuclear News magazine (13 issues), the world's leading nuclear publication, ANS News (6 issues), plus the renowned Nuclear News Buyers Guide
- ! membership in two ANS divisions
- ! lower meeting registration fees
- ! discounts on the Society's three technical journals (Nuclear Science and Engineering, Nuclear Technology, and Fusion Science & Technology), Radwaste Solutions, and numerous other publications
- ! access to the Members-Only portion of our website, including the ANS Career Center
- ! various honors and awards and scholarships
- ! recognition for sponsoring new members
- ! the opportunity to participate as a mentor or protégé to other members
- ! insurance programs

An application form accompanies this. You can also complete an application for membership at the ANS website, www.ans.org, or contact the Membership Department at 1-800-323-3044 to receive an application by mail or fax.

ABOUT THE SOCIETY

The American Nuclear Society is celebrating 60 years as the premier society for nuclear professionals. Our individual membership ranks include more than 11,000 engineers, scientists, educators, students, and others with nuclear related interests. Our members hail from more than 1,600 corporations, educational institutions, and government agencies from over 40 different countries. More than 80 industry-leading companies support the ANS as Organization Members.

ANS, a not-for-profit society, provides extensive opportunities for every professional group in the nuclear field to interact effectively via 22 divisions and technical groups, 59 U.S. and 10 non-U.S. local sections, 3 plant branches, and 43 U.S. and 3 non-U.S. student sections

The Society serves as an advocate for individuals and organizations having a stake in nuclear science and technology. Our Washington, D.C. office acts as a technical resource to senior policy and decision makers. ANS produces position papers on nuclear science and technology issues of our times, publishing these in print and on our website.

Through the Honors and Awards Program, ANS recognizes members for outstanding efforts and accomplishments in their fields.

Vision
ANS will be the recognized credible advocate for advancing and promoting nuclear science and technology.

Mission
ANS provides society members with professional development opportunities and serves the nuclear community by creating a forum for sharing information and advancements in technology, and by engaging the public and policy makers through communication outreach.

Purpose
The core purpose of ANS is to promote the awareness and understanding of the application of nuclear science and technology.
